May Day Holiday Promotion Weekend

One of the real pleasures of running your own local business is trying to find products and services which we hope our customers will enjoy.

Last May we were delighted with the response we had to our new look store opening weekend and wondered how we could do something similar this year.

Well why not join us for our May Day Holiday Promotion Weekend on Friday 3rd and Saturday 4th May?

Not only will you find a range of special offers only available on these two days, you will also find some free giveaways and refreshments to enjoy whilst you look around the store and garden centre.

A couple of suppliers will also be available on Saturday to highlight their product ranges and I have also arranged for a tool sharpener to visit us so that all those shears, loppers and knives which are tucked away in our garages and sheds can be sharpened ready for the new gardening season.

Supplier Support

Thanks to the support of Home Hardware and some of our other suppliers we have arranged some great offers for you.

- 5 trays of bedding plants only £10. (normally £2.25 each)
- 4 basket plants for £5 (Normally £1.55 each)
- Free tomato plant when you spend over £10. (whilst stocks last).

Bank Holidays

We will be closed on both bank holidays during May.

May Day Holiday Promotion Weekend. 3rd / 4th May 2013.

Join us for a special weekend of gardening promotions and special offers. Refreshments available.

Points of Interest

- We can fill your summer hanging baskets and pots. Drop them in store now and collect them fully planted from mid May onwards.
- Latest recorded date for a frost in Norfolk is early May. Protect tender plants until then. We sell fleece for this purpose. Easy to use and inexpensive!
- Our staff member—Bridget is licensed to microchip your pets. This is a valuable local service. Please speak to Bridget to find out more.
- Our extended range of haberdashery, wool and patterns has gained many favorable comments. Save time and money and buy from us instead of travelling into Norwich. The Dylon range of products is also available in store.

One for the toolbox

Sometimes we come across a product that is really useful. One of my favorites is Epoxy Repair Putty. It works in a number of applications and is an ideal way of tackling some of those tricky jobs.

Ever drilled a hole and realised it's the wrong size?

A little of this putty will fill the hole. In minutes the repair will set hard and you can drill again. I find it useful for fixing curtain rails where there is a lintel just behind the plaster. It works in all conditions—some customers have used it to make temporary repairs to exhaust systems.

Available in store for only £2.49.

Andrew's Top Tip

Last month we looked at how to spruce up your bathroom tiles with Hagesen Mould Spray. This month we will be looking at the tricky subject of replacing silicone seals.

Start by removing as much of the seal as possible using a knife. This will leave a residue which can be easily removed using HG Silicone Seal Remover. This really does work and will provide a blemish free surface for your new seal.

Next you need to clean all surfaces with metholated spirit. (Do not use anything else). This will ensure that you have a perfectly clean surface upon which the new silicone seal can be placed.

Then using masking tape, mask off the area you wish to seal. Spend some time on this and you will get a better result. Mask off approx 5mm either side of the new silicone joint, i.e. 5mm on the tiles and 5mm on the bath or shower.

Apply the new silicone. Use a good quality seal such as the Unibond product we sell at £5.55. Apply using a cartridge gun and press into the joint between the masking tape using a wet finger. Run the finger along the length of the seal. Kitchen towel is handy to wipe your finger.

Once you are happy with the new seal immediately remove the masking tape. To do this pull up and cleanly away from the silicone. You should be left with a perfectly applied silicone seal which will last for many years.
